© September 25, 2005

Key of A minor, 6-8 Time

a        G        a        d Maiden, Maiden, where are you going? ↗
a                    G                    d
Ribbons and curls and playthings laid down ↗
a                                    d                    G
Sailing through changes on waters well-charted ↘
a                                    G                    d
Soon as a woman you'll wear a new gown ↗

CHORUS:

F                                    //    C                    G
Time never stops // it always keeps going... ↘
A                                    D                    E
Time is advancing, it never is slowing ↗
F                                    C                    G
Use time for pleasure, not for regretting
Hold onto memories, never forgetting, that
A                                    //    G                    a
Life never stops // we go round and round

Mother, Mother, where are you going?
House are tended and children are grown
Time now for pleasures and dreams unrequited
Soon you will harvest the crop your seed's sown

CHORUS

Grandmother, Grandmother, where are you going?
New generations are teaching your lore
Time with your lover's now time spent in dreaming
Soon you will sail on to uncharted shores

CHORUS

Wise Woman, Wise Woman, where are you going?
Spinning and weaving now cut to the bone
Time now for hindsight and visions and mourning
Will the sweet Summerland be your new home?

CHORUS x 2
